Hooding Ceremony

Class of 1992
Hooding Ceremony

May 10, 1992
1:30 p.m.
Mershon Auditorium

The Honorable Warren E. Burger

The Honorable Warren E. Burger Hoarding Speaker

Warren E. Burger became the fifteenth Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court on June 23, 1969. He served with distinction as Chief Justice for seventeen years, guiding the Court through a period of challenging transition, changes in the law and the body politic, and the crisis during the Nixon presidency. Since his retirement from the Court in 1986, he gave his full time and energies to his responsibilities as Chair of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. Under his leadership, the Commission promoted many educational programs, both locally and nationally, devoted to our American constitutional tradition of justice under law and the protection of individual liberties.

Warren Burger pursued a distinguished career as a lawyer for more than twenty years in his native state of Minnesota before going to Washington, D.C. In 1953, he accepted appointment as an Assistant Attorney General to head the Civil Division of the Department of Justice. Three years later, he was appointed to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. His judicial acumen and conservative approach to constitutional interpretation gained for him recognition and led to his appointment as Chief Justice by then-President Richard M. Nixon.

Throughout his tenure on the high court, Chief Justice Burger was an outspoken advocate for judicial reform. He created new positions within the federal judiciary to free judges from time-consuming administrative tasks. He also established the Institute for Court Management to train court executive officers in new management techniques for administrative efficiencies. In order to assure access to justice, Chief Justice Burger was committed to and worked toward the implementation of effective alternative dispute resolution methods, such as arbitration and mediation.

As a graduate of the University of Minnesota, Chief Justice Burger began his legal career at the St. Paul College of Law from which he graduated magna cum laude in 1931. For many years as a practicing lawyer, he taught part-time at his law school, now William Mitchell College of Law. After leaving the Supreme Court, he served as Chancellor of the College of William and Mary and has served as trustee for a number of other educational institutions and foundations.

Chief Justice Burger's devotion to scholarship, his distinguished career, and his exemplary service to American society have been recognized by many awards and honorary degrees. The Ohio State University and the Class of 1992 are honored by his participation in this centennial year Hoarding Ceremony.

“Oh! come let's sing Ohio's praise,
And songs to Alma Mater raise;
While our hearts rebounding thrill
With joy which death alone can still.
Summer's heat or Winter's cold,
The seasons pass, the years will roll;
Time and change will surely show
How firm thy friendship—Ohio.”

Outstanding Academic Achievement Recognitions

The following students (listed alphabetically, but not ranked) represent approximately the upper ten percent of the 1992 Graduating Class based upon academic performance through the conclusion of five of six semesters of law study. Ranking for official degree honors and election to the Order of the Coif cannot be determined until submission of all final grades for May graduates. Numerical divisions among students for special honors are often determined by very narrow margins, and the composition of the final upper ten percent of the class may vary from those students herein recognized.

The Hooding Committee

The Co-Chairs of the Hooding Committee thank its members for their hard work and dedication in making the Centennial Celebration a great graduation experience. Thank you Lynn Marine, Anne Sarkinen, Patricia Hernández, Stephanie Amicon, Kathleen Johnson, and our special mentor Dean Joanne Murphy. We could not have done it without you!

Kimberly A. Callery
Hilary R. Damaser

With Appreciation

The Class of 1992 wishes to recognize our mothers, on this their special day, our fathers, families and friends for all of their love and support throughout the past three years. As the College's Centennial Class, we also would like to thank those faculty and alumni who have dedicated themselves to maintaining and instilling within us the high standards of academic excellence and professionalism that the College has fostered for the past 100 years. We will miss you all!

The Class of 1992

The Class of 1992 shares a unique link to the College's first class that began legal study one hundred years ago. These graduates are the beneficiaries of a proud heritage and the initiators of a second century of achievement by the College and its alumni.

Outstanding Professor Award

Awarded by election of the members of the third-year class in recognition of outstanding performance as a teacher.

Professor Lawrence Herman

Since joining the law faculty in 1961, Professor Lawrence Herman has been a highly respected teacher, mentor, and colleague. Legions of students have benefitted from his mastery of Criminal Law and Procedure. His love of advocacy and appellate practice has also inspired countless students who have participated in the College's Moot Court program and who have competed as members of the national moot court teams, all of which he has advised for the past 30 years. Professor Herman's language skills and travel interests led to the establishment of the College's Oxford Summer Law Program in 1987, and he has served as a lecturer and director of this successful program. He also has participated in law faculty exchanges between Ohio State and the University of Genoa, Italy. In 1979, he was named the Presidents Club Professor of Law.

Professor Herman has authored one book, The Right to Counsel in Misdemeanor Cases, contributed to numerous other volumes, and penned a multitude of articles. His most recent work will appear in the Ohio State Law Journal as a two-part article on interrogation. He has lectured extensively to groups of lawyers and judges including the Sixth Circuit Judicial Conference, Ohio Judicial College, Ohio State Bar Association, Columbus Bar Association, and other municipal or county bar associations. From 1967-87 he was a member of the Board of Directors of the American Civil Liberties Union, and for six years served as that organization's general counsel.

With this award, Professor Herman is now a three-time recipient of the Outstanding Professor Award, the highest honor law students can bestow upon a faculty member. He received The Ohio State University Award for Distinguished Teaching in 1981. Professor Herman took early retirement at the end of February, but in typical selfless fashion, he has continued teaching for the balance of the semester without compensation. He plans to return to the classroom on a part-time basis in the next academic year.

Professor Herman received his A.B. from the University of Cincinnati, graduating Phi Beta Kappa. While attending Cincinnati's law school, he served as editor-in-chief of the Cincinnati Law Review and graduated with Order of the Coif honors. In 1988, the University of Cincinnati College of Law honored him with its Distinguished Alumnus Award.

The Juris Doctor Hood

Ceremony and symbolism share an important part of the human experience by providing tangible signs of personal achievement and commitment. Today, the investment of the Juris Doctor Hood and the presentation of the diploma case, soon to be filled with the official Juris Doctor degree of The Ohio State University, acknowledge the hard work, dedication, and exceptional academic achievement of the graduates of the Class of 1992. The investment of the hood also manifests for each recipient a continuing commitment to the values and objectives represented by the Juris Doctor degree. This ceremony marks for the members of the Class of 1992 passage from the status of student to entry into the learned profession of the law.

The wearing of the academic hood is a centuries-old tradition. It is an enduring symbol of high academic achievement, and it shall be the privilege of each recipient so invested to wear this hood and gown whenever in the future such academic attire is appropriate. The colors of the hood have their own symbolism. The color of purple represents the study of law and the conferral of the Juris Doctor degree. The colors of the hood lining represent the degree-granting institution, the scarlet and gray of The Ohio State University.

The College of Law: 100 Years

By resolution of The Ohio State University Board of Trustees on July 23, 1891, a school of law was established to be supported solely from student tuition. Formal ceremonies initiated the opening of classes on October 1, 1891, in the Franklin County Courthouse. The Honorable Marshall J. Williams, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio, served as the first dean of a small part-time faculty of practitioners and judges. The first class was made up of thirty-three students, including one woman.

By the spring of 1892, financial problems threatened the closing of the school. Rutherford B. Hayes, then chairman of the Board of Trustees and former President of the United States, responded with a gift of $300 and successfully proposed at the January 1893 meeting of the Board that the University allocate $1,500 annually to the law school. In the fall of 1894, the school moved to the campus into the newly constructed Hayes Hall, and shortly thereafter occupied space in Orton Hall. Under the leadership of William F. Hunter, the school's first full-time dean, the school was elevated to the status of a College of Law in 1896, and five years later became a charter member of the Association of American Law Schools. The College achieved its first permanent home in 1903 when it took up residence in Page Hall.

From its meager beginnings, the College of Law today completes a century of progress and distinction because of the achievements of its students and the dedication of faculty, alumni and friends. It prospers at an outstanding University and looks to an exciting second century of service. It begins that century with talented students and faculty, a nationally ranked library, and one of the country's most modern law school facilities, upon completion of the 95,000 square foot Law Building Addition and Renovation Project. Occupancy of the addition will occur this fall, and the total project is scheduled for completion in early winter 1992-1993.
